in home repair course

Class raises the walls

Belle Glade may not have been built in a day but there's a group of homeowners over at Lake Shore Junior High School learning how to do the job one step at a time.

The class members are for the most part people whose homes are being refurbished in the Belle Glade Community Development Program and once their house is in order, they intend to keep it that way.

So for little or no charge, they're taking a course offered by Glades Central Community School, which is open to the public, which teaches them how to take care of little odd jobs like taking care of floors, repairing commodes and other minor chores...like building walls.

That was what they were up to this week. Instructor John George said he figured the best way to teach someone how to repair a hole in a wall, or how to install an electrical outlet, or hang a picture or paint a wall would be to have the class build a wall.

And if building a wall is good, it must be better to break the class up so everyone gets their hands into building a couple of walls, even if it meant hammering the wrong nails.

George, a regular industrial arts teacher at Lake Shore Junior High, said he was enthusiastic about the program. "I've never seen a class so eager to learn," he commented about the Monday night group. "They don't even want to take a break when it's offered...and I want the break."

George teaches in an easy, relaxed manner, managing somehow to cover all the basics without "talking down" to his adult students, who have varying amounts of experience with hand and power tools.

When a point he hasn't covered, such as the problems encountered trying to hammer a nail into a knot, rise, he explains not only that it's hard to drive a nail into the knot but what the knot is and why it's hard.

The course is the brainchild of Community Development Program Director George Gartner and it is being watched closely by U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) officials from Jacksonville to Washington as an innovative way of protecting the investment made by taxpayers.

One of the observers on hand for Monday night's class was Bill Brisson, a representative of Adley and Associates who has been involved in the planning of the CDP from the beginning.

One of the side benefits for the CDP participants who are also taking part in the class is a do-it-yourself manual published by Reader's Digest and a tool kit containing the basic tools necessary to handle most jobs around the home.

The manual is also available to students who aren't CDP participants but they must buy theirs.

but contract postponed

City hires engineers

A consulting engineering firm was named by the Belle Glade City Commission Monday night to replace the firm fired in March 1975, on a split vote, then decided to hold up the contract until conflict of interest charges could be checked out.

Mayor William Grear, and Commissioners Ralph Kirk and Tom Altman voted to hire Barker, Osha and Anderson but agreed to postpone signing the contract until they could contact the company about something Commissioner Kenneth Harris, who voted with Farmer against the firm, reported.

"For the record," Harris said once the vote was taken, "I have faith in the company" but there is a possibility of a conflict of interest." Harris said he was hesitant to even raise the question but he had been told there would be such a conflict because Barker, Osha and Anderson share mutual projects with Russell and Axon, another firm.

Harris said he had attempted to call Charles Anderson of the selected firm to question him about the conflict but had failed to reach him.

Anderson, who is a partner in the firm, said Tuesday he knows of no conflict of interest. He said his firm is working with Russell and Axon in two projects in the West Palm Beach area but he didn't see where that constituted a conflict of interest.

Acting City Manager Frank Anderson said he had asked Anderson whether the firm's employment as consulting engineers on the county 201 waste water disposal study would cause a conflict of interest.

He said he didn't believe it would cause one, the city official said, "and he said he would certainly notify us anytime he thought a conflict would arise."

Should Mayor Grear sign the contract, it will be the first time the city has had a consulting engineering firm good standing since they were fired almost 16 months ago.

Questioned by Harris, City Attorney John Baker said the contract with Barker, Osha and Anderson was a better agreement than a previous one with Briley, Wild or the one offered by Post, Buckley, Schuh and Jernigan.

He said a clause is included which allows the city and the firm to arrive at a flat figure for major projects and that Barker, Osha and Anderson will have to travel a shorter distance.

The new firm reportedly plans to open an office in Belle Glade. Besides handling the waste water disposal program, Barker, Osha and Anderson are also involved in the Glades as the consulting engineers for the City of South Bay.

City signs contract as Subdivision nears end

An eight-year project to find low-cost housing in Belle Glade could be going into its final days in the near future with the contracting of Richmond, Inc. to build streets and install water and sewer lines and drainage to the last portion of Sugar Subdivision.

The City Commission Monday night authorized the mayor to sign a $134,554 contract with Richmond to handle the developing of the area containing lots for 32 homes.

Acting City Manager Frank Anderson said the next step is to set up a pre-construction conference and then the construction should get underway shortly after that. He said no date has been set as yet for the conference but he believes it will be sometime in the next three weeks.

Once construction begins, Richmond has 45 days to complete the streets. The other jobs listed in the contract are all supposed to be completed in shorter periods of time.

The bids had been brought before the commission during the July 26 meeting but the commission took no action at that time because Commissioner Aubrey Farmer wanted Anderson to see if city forces could perform the job cheaper and within a reasonable time.

This was reported as unfeasible and Hutchison Engineers, who did the preliminary engineering work, recommended the city use one contractor to handle all four phases of the work. While there were four construction companies bidding, only Richmond and one other bid on all four phases. The other company's bid was almost twice that of Richmond. Sugar Subdivision was originally procured by the city in 1968 in a land swap with U.S. Sugar Corp. in an effort to provide land to build low cost housing. The city developed the streets, water, sewer and drainage with city forces and sold the lots to both individuals and developers at a cost of $2,985 plus $125 closing costs per lot. The lot cost to the city was in excess of $2,900 and what little was made was applied to the city hall building fund. Anderson told the commissioners the money to develop the remaining area will be taken out of the city hall building fund and repaid as the lots are sold. Mayor William Grear said the remaining lots will go for about $6,000 each. Two are being reserved for open spaces.

The last lot sold in the subdivision was in May 1975. There were two sold in 1974 and the last before that was in 1972.

Most of the 98 lots sold in the subdivision so far have been financed through the Federal Housing Administration. Anderson said he has been informed by Mayor Grear that there are already people interested in buying every one of the lots to be developed in the last batch.

Tom Rackley ropes in kids for campaign

Children involved in the arts and crafts program at Gladesview Elementary School had a surprise ending on their last day, Friday, when Palm Beach County Sheriff's candidate Tom Rackley appeared to put on a fancy trick roping exhibition.

Rackley is a Democratic candidate for the Sheriff's position who toured the county for some 20 years as a trick roping rodeo man. He has also owned and operated a heavy equipment company in Loxahatchee for the past 28 years.

After the exhibition, Rackley played down the roping and said he is a serious candidate and his basic platform is to build a greater rapport between the citizens of the county and the Sheriff's Office.

He said he believed he could accomplish the rapport by making personal appearances, working with the deputies and forming a sheriff's posse.

"I don't mean the type of posse that rides horses in parades," he said. "What I'd like to have would be a group of solid citizens throughout the county to provide input into how the sheriff could better serve the county."

"I feel the purpose of the Sheriff's Office," he said, "should be one of courteous service and protection to the citizens and their property...not harassment."

Rackley, 59, said this is the first time he's run for political office, although he was once appointed as an interim town marshal in a small Missouri town.

Fashion show to aid Grady

A brunch-fashion show will be held Thursday Aug. 19 at the Belle Glade Civic Center in order to raise funds for the U.S. State campaign of Dr. John Grady.

The fashion show, according to Mrs. Virginia Anderson, is being sponsored by a group of local women supporters of Grady. "We're going to be holding the brunch from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.," Mrs. Anderson said. "That's when everyone eats lunch. The models will be showing off the fashions team style through the employment of both guys and gals and Dr. Grady will be on hand to greet his friends."

Tickets, she said, will be on sale at the Town and Country Shop and Averil's.

proceeds will go to the John Grady campaign fund.

She said the models will be wearing fall clothing from The Town and Country Shop, which she owns, and a $100 gift certificate for clothing will be offered as a door prize. Floral decorations will be by Belle Glade Florists.

The "whole" program, Mrs. Anderson said, is being planned for the begin at 7 p.m. and expected to continue to 10 p.m. All of the Democratic candidates for county and state office have been invited to attend and answer questions from the audience.

The Democratic committee will soon be opening an office in the Time Saver building for the upcoming political season.

Q. My son's wife is probably the most charming spendthrift ever born. While I truly love her, I'd rather my son handled the money in their family. My problem is, does she automatically inherit half of whatever insurance money my son collects? He is my beneficiary.

A. What you leave your son in your will will be his. He is the one the insurance company must pay. She can get part of the money only if he gives it to her. But if your son decides to indulge her a bit, don't worry. By then, perhaps your daughter-in-law may have become a savvy bargain hunter.

Sugar

The market rallied quite sharply from the lows with short covering developing once the bearish implications of the cheap raw sugar offers to a Marseilles refinery had been absorbed. European beet test results should be published this week and if they confirm lower yields the earlier run up futures exhibited during early July may turn out to have validity in the light of west European drought induced crop stress but the early Dutch yield improvements appear bearish. Earlier we recommended initiating long positions in March 1977 #11 world sugar 14.25-14.45 with stops placed below 12.82 and we continue to adhere to that position.

Orange Juice

For the past month (June 29th thru July 28th) nearly half of the trading activity in the New York citrus futures market has been in the January '77 contract. During this period the open position in January has risen from 1,000 lots to 1,643 lots, while the price range has been roughly 3 cents - 5 1/4 cents to 5 7/4 cents. Because January represents a potential freeze month most of the new speculative buying has been centered in this contract. The January option has been sold both on an outright basis for industry hedging and on a straddle basis against the buying of both the nearby September '76 option and the distant May and July '77 contracts. With the current inventory picture (more product on and than ever before), and the outlook for a bumper crop to come, the industry has been a willing seller of January on strength because it is felt that there will be ample deliveries to this contract. Straddlers have sold January on strength because it is felt that there will be ample deliveries to this contract. Straddlers have sold January against the purchase of other contracts. We continue to view the citrus futures market as a bear term up and down trader, and would sell the market during moments of strength both for hedging and speculation.

Corn

The USDA corn supply/demand revision raised exports 50 million bushels and indicated carryover next September 30 at 767 million down 50 million from the 7/13/76 estimate. These revisions were about as expected and have little market impact. Weakness in soybeans and other grains most likely weighed on corn values and they continue to reflect little rallying ability above the 2.72 level basis December. The close below 2.72 signifies a major top formation covering a 7 week period. The weather over the next 2-3 weeks will be critical but barring unforeseen developments the current U.S. crop has an excellent chance of coming in above 6.55 billion bushels and indicates a carryover next season which, though not burdensome, appears fully ample in the light of current supply/demand statistics. We continue with our earlier recommendation of short sales basis December around 2.72 with protective stops above 2.84.

Wheat

News of continuing Australian crop problems with estimates now at 7 million tons vs. earlier estimates of 13.5 million failed to bolster board values as futures pushed to new contract lows. Canada's wheat crop projected at 736 million bushels is above 1975 output of 624 million and the possible upgrading of the Soviet harvest appear to be the bear argument at present and further enhanced by the poor technical picture. Last week we recommended sales of December wheat at 3.78 with protective stops at 3.95. We continue to adhere to that recommendation.

Pot Likker

by R-D Santee

There seems to be a problem with credibility in our political system.

It's not the problem of truthfulness in politics, it's the problem of ideology. It seems to me that anyone it isn't a question of whether one is a Democrat or Republican. It's the question of being liberal or conservative.

A prime example is the two candidates for Vice President. Why Mondale and Schweiker aren't in the same party is beyond me. Their political ideologies are very similar. They're both liberal. One calls himself a Liberal Democrat. The other a Liberal Republican.

All this ballyhoo about the two party system is just that...ballyhoo. We have four parties, evidently. Liberal Democrats, Conservative Democrats, Liberal Republicans and Conservative Republicans. If you throw in the Independents, American, Socialist, Anti-Abortion parties and a few others, we have more parties than we have people. Party politics are a drain on the nation. They're worse than no leadership at all.

For instance, I recently spent the day in Washington with Senator J. Wainwright Windbag, a Conservative Democrat.

He read bill after bill, or, more precisely, who introduced the bill.

and muttered to himself "Fachyderm is a Republican, it's a bad bill. Bubbleblast is too liberal can't vote for that. Ford is a Republican, gotta watch out for his stuff, don't want to make him look too good in an election year."

As I went from office to office I discovered that the game was being played by everyone. Very few cared what the bill was all about. Only which party had sponsored it.

Now, I have a way of getting around all this. Let's go back to the two party system. Only call them Liberal and Conservative. What's more, if a man runs on the Conservative ticket and his voting record reflects Liberal, then he must switch parties and worry about re-election by the constituency that put him in for his seemingly Conservative leanings.

That'll keep them straight. Of course there's always the problem of a Minority President. They never seem to be able to get much done.

Maybe an altered version of the English form of government would work.

The President should come from the majority party. He'll get more done. And it would be more damage or more good. American's have been known for refusing to do things half-way...except in politics.

Comforting candidates

It sure is nice to know the current crop of candidates for political office are so concerned about each other's welfare.

Why, would you believe one of the candidates for county property appraiser (that's the new name for the local tax assessor for those who didn't keep up the legislature that was) who was so concerned about running a fair race he had to write all the newspapers in the county to say he wasn't going to talk about a scandal incumbent Dave Reid has been accused of.

He was so concerned he spent the better part of the news release talking about the scandal he said he was going to avoid.

Then there was that news conference last Friday over at the county courthouse called by District Five County Commission hopeful Betty Jordan to point out the error of the ways of Tom Burrus and Oscar Shackelford.

We thought it was interesting that the news conference, which only concerned candidates representing the Glades, should be called in West Palm Beach. Must be something to do with the location of the daily newspapers and the television stations.

At any rate, Mrs. Jordan was concerned lest Tom, a deputy sheriff who works out of the Glades Office Building, and Oscar, another county employee who works with kids on the coast, should get in trouble later on.

Seems that Mrs. Jordan had the latest word on the ins and outs of resign to run laws and she said they'd get in trouble if they were elected without resigning from their county positions. Oh yes, she also commented she didn't feel it was right that the county taxpayers should pay Tom and Oscar while they were campaigning.

It's really a comfort to know the campaigns around the county are going to be run on issues this time instead of personalities.

It's also a comfort to know candidates like Mrs. Jordan are so well versed in the law, even if the attorney general might have figured differently, and operate within that law.

Why, heck, she even made it a point to establish residence in Pahokee about the time she qualified to run.

And that's awful decent of her since she doesn't have to move from West Palm Beach before she's elected.

CRACKER

CRUMBS

BY DEAN JONES

Hot...thought I'd die. It's amazing how a person can get absolutely spoiled by modern technology. There are still a few things considered to be necessary trappings to life in these United States I can do without but air conditioning ain't one of them.

Which is sorta funny since I managed to make it through the first two thirds of my life without it.

Didn't even think that much about it but I guess that's why kids when I was growing up always spent so much time outdoors. Heck, it was cooler out there in the shade where a breeze could reach you.

Didn't even think that much about it when I was baling hay at the local dairy and come to think of it, I don't think much of the idea now either. Course that don't matter cause the dairy is now a condominium.

But whenever old AC konked out last week, it just seemed like it was all a body wanted to do was sit around and pant. Well, to be honest, I did manage to sweat a lot too.

That's the problem with technology though. You get used to it, after paying through the nose or putting yourself in debt for it and what was a luxury is now a necessity.

Makes you wonder what it would be like, and might be like if a certain breed of conservatismists have their way, and the country goes into a permanent brown-out and we can't depend on electricity anymore.

May not seem like much but think of all the little joys we'd have again...like sweating a few pounds off in the summer in the peace and quiet of a non-television, non-stereophonic society.

Who knows, without the manufactured recreation shoved down our collective throat by the boob tube, radio stations or what have you, we might even be able to begin entertaining ourselves again.

Like spending the warm summer nights sittin' on the front porch talking to the neighbors, who we might get to know again.

Like not having to threaten to maim or dismember the kids to get them out of the house to play with the other kids on the block, who they might begin to see for the first time as somebody besides a figure reclining on the floor in front of a ghostly white screen.

Like going to bed early because nobody wants to put up with the heat and bugs which are the side effects of kerosene lamps. Anybody out there remember what it's like to wake up in the morning after a good night's sleep?

Let's face it, without the piped in shows most of us have become addicted to, there wouldn't be any big reason to stay up so late.

But when we did, a lot of it would probably be spent out of sight of stars in the sky.

But there would be those long winter evenings to kill too, right? Remember what it was like for the whole family to collaborate on a Saturday night to make doughnuts for Sunday breakfast? They might not have been Krispy Kremes but they sure tasted good coming right out of the grease and dusted with confectioner's sugar.

And how many of today's kids have ever had the treat of running after an ice wagon to snaffle up on a few free slivers of ice from the ammoniac-scented wooden decks of the truck?

But, God, was it hot BAC (before air conditioners).

Sure can tell it's the Silly Season (translate that as election time again).

A body doesn't even have to be told, what with going to a city commission meeting and seeing a the potential commissioners o hand.

About 48 weeks out of the year you find a body at the commission meeting who doesn't have business or who doesn't want to see somebody else's business succeed for some reason.

The along about the beginning of qualifying time, here they come; the hopefuls are out in force.

Sometimes, like in South Bay last week, one or two even takes the opportunity to get in a few cheap shots at his incumbent opponent.

Silly season with a vengeance.

Your brother-in-law asked you to co-sign a loan, you had misgivings, but you were too embarrassed to say no.

Actually, you have every right and reason to think twice before co-signing. If you put your name on a loan agreement as co-signer, you are just as responsible for that loan as the borrower.

Should the borrower default, you are the one who must make the payments.

A co-signer is usually required when the borrower's income is borderline, if he just started a new job, has a record of job hopping, has just moved into the state, or has a bad credit rating. In other words, when a co-signer is required, there is usually reason to doubt the dependability of the borrower.

You should know further that the policy of most lenders in case of a loan delinquency, is to go directly to the co-signer rather than waste time tracking down the borrower through costly court proceedings.

Because of the risk involved in co-signing, it would seem that most co-signers would be aware of the responsibilities involved. Most are not.

In these days when all of us have enough trouble paying our own bills, be extra careful before you assume responsibility for someone else's.

It might be embarrassing to say no, but it could save a lot harder feelings later on.

The 29th

So comes the agreement between Palm Beach Junior College and the United Faculty of PBJC. They finally agreed to go to Special Master proceedings...after 29 meetings with a federal mediator.

They even agreed on two other items and now they only have 20 points on which they disagree before the college's first union contract is signed.

It was nice that the federal mediator felt he ought to congratulate both the college and the union for trying to come to an overall agreement but it seems that with his help, more could have been agreed to in the series of meetings that began in December.

That's comforting for the people who in the final analysis, are paying for the meetings. That's you

Drug program to get city aid

The Belle Glade City Commission promised aid Monday night to a drug-abuse treatment program at the Palm Beach Mental Health Center. Glades branch but asked that county participation be asked for first.

Cogar told the commissioners her program is the only one of its kind in the area, that the clients can't afford to pay fees and the only hope of funding the program is through matching funds.

Miss Cogar said there are matching Federal funds available but the center needs to raise $4,350 locally to get the $22,750 available.

She said she had talked to Deputy Belle Glade Police Chief Bill Mathis and he said as many as 80 per cent of the crime in the city are drug or alcohol oriented.

At the suggestion of Commissioner Aubrey Farmer, Miss Cogar said she would come back to the commission after she and several other Alcohol And Drug Abuse affiliated programs in the county can ask the county commission for aid.

Sen. Stone sets achievement records

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Sen. Richard Stone is working to become as effective as possible in the Senate, and in the pursuit of that goal he has set two achievement records for this session of Congress.

This month he passed the 50-hour mark for presiding over the Senate, more than double the presiding time of any other senator.

And, during the heated debate and passage of the Tax Reduction Act of 1975 in March, he presided without pause — for 9 hours and 4 minutes.

At that time, Assistant Majority Leader Robert Byrd told the Senate, "the senator from Florida has presided over this body with a degree of skill, competence, effectiveness and dignity that is so rare as a day in June, and he certainly has set a fine example of enforcing the rules."

In presiding a senator gains an intimate working knowledge of the Senate rules, which were originally written by the first Senate in 1788. These rules differ from standard parliamentary procedure used by most organizations, and therefore present a challenge to nearly all new senators.

Stone added, "There have also been instances of bad legislation that was appropriately killed by a minority that used the rules effectively."

Records kept by the Senate pages for this session of Congress, since January 15, show that by Memorial Day Stone had presided for 48 hours and 30 minutes. The closest contender, Vice President Rockefeller, had presided 25 hours and 17 minutes. The closest freshman senator, Gary Hart of Colorado, had logged 20 hours and 44 minutes.

According to a spokesman for the Democratic leadership, Stone is in line to receive the "Golden Gavel" award earlier in the year than any senator has previously. This award, presented by the pages and the majority and minority leaders, is given to freshmen senators who preside more than 100 hours in a single session of Congress. The distinction has been awarded most often to southern senators, including Florida's Sen. Lawton Chiles.

In still another action, the commission approved a contract with Richmond Company to do street work on Southwest Ninth and Tenth Streets, the target area for the Community Development Program.

CHD Director George Gartner said $75,982 worth of work will be done on Ninth Street and $97,307 on Tenth. The work will include cutting new grades to get a smoother drainage, installing "hollyhock curbs" which are like concrete swales, resurfacing and other work.

Vets Corner

ST. PETERSBURG, FL. — Some veterans who suffered severe disabilities during service in the Armed Forces of the United States are eligible for government financial assistance in purchasing a personal automobile, or other conveyance, says W. B. Mackall, Director of Florida's Division of Veterans Affairs, under the Department of Community Affairs.

A recent law which went into effect on 2-1-75, liberalized the eligibility requirements and increased the maximum amount which the Veterans Administration can pay toward purchase of an automobile. Prior to the recent change, a veteran whose disabilities were incurred since January 31, 1955, was eligible only if such conditions were the direct results of the performance of military duty. The basic requirement now is that the loss, or loss of use of limbs, or eyesight, must have been caused by service-connected disabilities.

Mackall further stated, when a veteran is shown to be eligible, the Veterans Administration is authorized to pay up to $3,300 toward the purchase of an automobile of the veteran's choice. In addition, the Veterans Administration may also pay an extra amount for certain optional equipment which may be needed because of a veteran's particular type of disability. Even if a veteran has previously used his entitlement for the automobile grant, he may still be eligible for Veterans Administration assistance to purchase needed optional equipment when he obtains a new vehicle.

If you have any questions regarding the above or any veteran matter, contact either your local County Veteran Service Office, any Office of the Veterans Administration or write Mackall at Post Office Box 1437, St. Petersburg 33711 (including your Veterans Administration Claim number, Service Serial Number or date of birth).

ANNOUNCING POLARIS® THE PLANT GROWTH REGULATOR THAT RIPENS SUGAR CANE.

Warm, wet weather may be ideal for growing sugar cane, but it's the last thing you need at harvest time. This is the kind of weather that causes the cane plant to grow, but not to store sucrose.

Until now, there was little you could do but take unripened cane to the mill. Now, there's Polaris® Plant Growth Regulator by Monsanto, the chemical that stimulates sugar cane ripening. Polaris can increase sucrose levels—in spite of poor ripening conditions such as warm, wet weather.

Polaris is applied about six weeks before harvest. Cane treated with Polaris usually burns better at harvest, resulting in less trash to the mill. What's more, Polaris does not significantly affect cane tonnage, and has no adverse effect on ratoon regrowth.

Find out how Polaris can help you bring better-ripened cane to the mill this harvest. Contact your Monsanto representative or the distributor for Polaris in your area for the full details.

As with all agricultural products, read and follow the Polaris label.

Many PBJC students must pay more

Hundreds of Palm Beach Junior College students who thought they had already paid their Fall Term fees in June are learning that they have to pay $252 more. They don't like it. "After we explain what it is all about, most of them are nice enough," says Registrar Charles Graham, "but some of them are pretty steamed up when they first learn about it." The $252 extra was mandated by the 1976 legislature, which added that much to the amount collected from full-time students for the state loan fund. It couldn't be collected by the college until it became law, and until the college trustees made it applicable at PBJC. By that time, about 2,500 students had registered early and paid their fees for the Fall Term. Graham doesn't have any quarrel with the student loan fund, but he does wish the legislature had made its action effective in January instead of immediately. "It will be simple enough in January, but it is a real headache now," he said. Graham explained that 2,500 schedules will have to be re-run through the computer to enter the difference in fees paid on the records of the college. "Most students even know about the state student loan fund," Graham said, "and they think the $252 is an increase in student activity fees passed by the college. "Actually, the college had no choice but to collect the extra fee, and I'm sure the legislators did not realize that most of our full-time students would have already paid their Fall Term fees before we could take action to collect." The $252 will be put together with $4.50 already collected from all full-time students in public colleges in Florida for the loan fund, which is available to public and private college students in the state.

As school opens this fall, we hope that you, too, will lend your support to the School Safety Patrol, and we will consider it an honor should your son or daughter be asked to participate in safeguarding the lives of our youngest citizens. School Patrols represent perhaps the highest degree of service, leadership and cooperation of which students are capable in elementary and junior high school. By receiving thorough instruction in traffic safety and carrying those pointers home, Patrol members also have played a major role in adult safety education. They also play a vital role in the reduction of traffic accidents involving children. Significantly, since 1935 when specific records first were kept, the national pedestrian death rate for children ages five to 14 years has been cut by more than 50 percent - from 10.4 to 4.7 per 100,000 youngsters. This achievement, credible in large measure to patrol youngsters, gains even more importance when it is remembered that the number of automobiles has increased tenfold since the early 1920's. Thus, patrols not only make a measurable contribution to the safety of our children on streets and highways, but to themselves as well by working to develop qualities that may lead to further community involvement in their adulthood. August 12, 1976 8

That's it for one season and just the beginning for another.

Our women's softball league ended its season with a splashy note as the powers that be opened the skies and proceeded to soak every living room.

Funny, a few of us were discussing just the other day how fortunate we had been with our games this year. Not one of them had been rained out. Oh, we had a few problems with the field lights in Canal Point, but not enough to cancel or postpone a game. Guess someone didn't knock on wood hard enough 'cause it sure looked as if our last night of games was gonna be rained out.

Luckily though, the skies cleared and old Sol peered down upon us as we gazed dully at the clay-colored lake before us. Well, nothing a little dragging couldn't help, we decided and proceeded to spread the water around by towing a piece of fence around the field. After while we saw it wasn't doing much good.

homemade was getting all the drainage and it had disappeared. So, what's a little water? We'll just go to the clay pile way out in right field and bring some clay back.

First, we need some shovels and a wheelbarrow. Have you ever tried shoveling damp clay into a three-wheeled bucket and pushing a load through soggy grass and "quick-sand" clay?

"Don't put too much in it," my co-worker wined as we got it half-full. "Aw, it should be okay," I replied naïvely.

Late did I know the straining and groaning I'd go through getting that thing across the field. I swear my arms are two inches longer.

Much to our happiness and a lot to his chagrin, our able-bodied umpire appeared just then and took charge. Thank goodness for that. To make a long story short, an hour and dozens of loads later, the field was finally playable, well, a little anyway. Many thanks to the men who helped with the clay and the team members who also worked on the field. Oh yes, and a big thank you to that bright red truck which carried the clay.

Anyhow, it was sort of fun shoveling and tramping through the mud and I didn't even have to wait for the game to slide into a base. Nope, I took a headstart and slipped right across the bleachers as I tried to leap from one seat to another. Lucky for me, "Mom" caught me out of self-defense or I would have gone under the stands.

One wisecracker (and I know who you are, Millard) wanted me to save the last dance for him. I'll say one thing: it wasn't a waltz. Now I have a nice huge bruise on my leg to remind me I need to take dancing lessons.

All that's left now for the women's league is the "A" and "B" all-star game which will be played tonight at 7:30 and the winners of the game will challenge the championship team (Wallis Pharmacy) Tuesday night, Aug. 17, at 7:30 in Belle Glade.

See ya then.

Wallis wins softball championship

The Glades Women's Softball League ended its regular season last week amid rain and mud as A. Duda and Sons rallied for a victory over Dixie Fried Chicken and Wallis Pharmacy sloshed by Glades Sugar 11-10 in Tuesday night's games in Belle Glade to win the championship for 1976.

Wallis Pharmacy, 11-1 for the season, had a rough first inning, with the Glades Sugar girls knocking in three runs before Joan Anderson flied out to the shortstopper while Glades Sugar threw to second base to catch Peggy Chairs for a double play. Julie Pate walked, a two base hit into left field to lead the hitting. Barbara Hartwig scored the only run for Wallis in the bottom of the inning when Sally Carter got a double and stretched it to three bases. She was left on base as the next batter grounded out to pitcher for the third out.

Both teams relied on their offense, with Wallis edging ahead by three runs in the second inning when Jayne Meadows, Frances McLeod, Annette Davis and Ronnie Pike rounded the bases. Annette Davis made a triple, getting credited with two runs batted in.

Glades Sugar tied the score in the top of the third inning when Linda B. A. Peggy Chairs and Gail Exum came in, but the game "see-sawed" as the Wallis batters added two in the bottom of the inning to lead eight to six.

Undaunted, Glades Sugar

rallied for four runs in the third inning as Linda Anderson, Shelley Good-Peggy Chairs and Donna Jean Garcia crossed the plate to take the lead again by two runs.

Wallis regained the lead and the championship, however, as Sally Carter and Ronnie Pike scored to even the game and then Jayne Meadows hit a single and rounded the bases for the winning run on Annette Davis' base hit. The final score was Wallis Pharmacy 11, Glades Sugar 10.

The other game of the evening found Dixie Fried Chicken succumbing to a 7-30 and Sons in a game of defense. Duda took an early lead when Kim Miller slammed a double into left centerfield, causing Sharon Humphrey to score. Miller then came in on Diane Duda's single for the second run.

It was tight defense playing in the second inning with neither team advancing a runner to third base. The third inning proved to be exciting as Dixie Fried's fielding loosened and the Duda batters exploded for six runs and five consecutive hits, one of them a double by Becky Rhodes. Those who scored were Sharon Humphrey, Kim Miller, Digge Duda, Sherry Miller, Becky Rhodes and Donna Fowler. Kim Miller added another run in the bottom of the fourth for Duda to lead, nine to nothing.

Dixie Fried Chicken's offense got moving in the top of the fourth inning with Maggie Mooney and Kathy Moore rounding the bases. Moore slamming a two-bagger into centerfield in the process.

Left-hander Sylvia Rodriguez whacked a double in the bottom of the next inning and came around for yet another of Duda's runs.

Down by eight, the Dixie Fried players nevertheless gave it a determined try, pushing two more runs across in the top of the sixth inning and loading the bases with no outs. Their drive was squelched however as pitcher Diane Duda snagged two fly balls for outs and Kim Cooper was tagged out at second for three outs.

The win put Duda in a tie for third place with Timesaver in the league standings.

Final standings for the Glades Women's Softball League: Wallis Pharmacy, 11 wins and one loss; Glades Sugar, seven wins and five losses; Timesaver, five wins and seven losses; A. Duda and Sons, five wins and seven losses (tie); Dixie Fried Chicken, two wins and nine losses.

The "A" and "B" All Star game will be played tonight at 7:30 in Canal Point and the winner of this game will compete against Wallis Pharmacy, the championship team, at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 17, at the Belle Glade Little League - Jaycee ballpark.

FAMILIES STAY TOGETHER

Who Pray Together - You Need His Church

on the CONSUMERS' SIDE

QUESTION:

Can you please tell me the toll-free hotline for the Interstate Commerce Commission in Miami? Is it a statewide or nationwide number, and what type of problems do they handle?

ANSWER:

Due to the numerous public requests for assistance concerning shipments of household goods into the State of Florida, the Commission has installed a toll-free consumer "hot line" in its Miami field office. Questions concerning other ICC-regulated transportation matters in the State may also be directed to the new Miami service.

The new line, operated by specially-trained, transportation consumer specialists, may be called by anyone within the State of Florida and will be in operation from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The Miami hot line number may be called by dialing 800-432-4537.

While the Miami hot line has been installed solely for Florida residents, the Commission will continue to maintain its nationwide toll-free hot line service from its headquarters in Washington. That number may be reached from anywhere in the Continental United States by dialing 800-424-5212 between the hours of 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

QUESTION:

Is there any comprehensive information in Florida about funerals? I am interested in such things as funeral costs, pre-planning, etc.

ANSWER:

Death and funerals are both subjects we tend to shy away from. Because of this, most people end up facing decisions on funeral arrangements when they're under great emotional stress. And, they have to decide quickly, as well.

There are certainly painful conditions for determining what constitutes good value for the money.

Two booklets are available to the public on the subject of funerals. One is entitled "Facts About Funerals." It is on a question answer format and deals with funeral costs, caskets, vaults, selecting a funeral director, etc. This pamphlet is available free by writing: "Facts About Funerals," The Division of Consumer Services, Mayo Building, Tallahassee, Florida 32304.

Secondly, The Federal Trade Commission has a new booklet that provides different options available and their costs to consumers. The booklet also includes a format for use in conducting price surveys in communities. For a copy of "The Price of Death," send $1.05 to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 88, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Farm Front

by Doyle Conner, Commissioner

Testimony at a series of three special Senate Agricultural Advisory Committee hearings virtually assures that two bills killed in the 1976 session which would increase the costs to agriculture will stay dead. Those two would have levied an excise tax on farm products to create an emergency fund to combat pests and diseases and finance the citrus budworm registration program and the fight on the burrowing nematode.

Senators and laymen in Homestead, Lake City and Tampa also heard a variety of testimony on the problems of the tightly integrated poultry industry, progress in the battle with lethal yellowing of palms and the cost of fumigation of fruit going to certain markets.

While there is some merit for having a source of funds available to use in unexpected emergencies — such as that posed by the funding of the citrus blackfly in Southeast Florida, the unilateral consensus was that the money should come out of general state revenues and not from any special tax on agricultural products.

This has been the historical method of financing pest and disease control and eradication programs, of which Florida seems to have a gracious plenty these days. But when the blackfly problems appeared a month before convening of the 1976 Legislature, it meant curtailment of other efforts to devote funds and manpower to the blackfly fight.

However, as pointed out by speaker after speaker in the hearings, agriculture did not cause the problems associated with many pests and diseases. The blackfly most likely was brought in three or four years ago by a tourist who visited Texas or Mexico; any yachman could have brought it in from one of the Caribbean islands.

A cattle tick infestation years ago was traced to a circus elephant, and various other pests such as the African snail were brought in by travelers. So, as the agricultural leaders point out, pest problems are problems of the general public and they, as well as of general concern. To levy a tax on agriculture to finance control programs would be to single out farm products for special treatment.

Proposals to increase citrus inspection fees to finance the budworm and spreading decline programs also were knocked as harmful to the citrus industry, says instead to levy a tax on agriculture to finance control programs would be to single out farm products for special treatment.

Sen. Curtis Pritchett, who with Sen. Kenneth Mackay introduced a bill to provide for compulsory bargaining between producers and processors in the last session — a bill which did not make it through to passage — promised the processors at one of the hearings that if they do not help producers who raise broilers under contract to solve some of their problems, the bill will be introduced again.

Broiler producers complained at the Lake City hearing that once they build a broiler house, they are locked in with their processor and have little voice in determining what their returns will be.

Dateline History

by Jerome Turk & Wm. D. Ellis

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 6, 1776—The Declaration of Independence has been signed in secret by 50 delegates to this Congress, including most who approved it & some who didn't.

The men who have mutually pledged to support the Declaration with "our Lives, our Fortunes & our Sacred Honor" do not seem eager to bandy their names in public.

The very real danger of British retaliation has begun to dawn on the delegates. There is no boasting heard in the gleamy taverns or on the sun-baked streets of this city.

Although the majority of delegates from 12 states (New York excepted) on July 4 approved "A Declaration by the Representatives of the United States of America in Congress Assembled," none but President John Hancock & Secretary Charles Thompson had put signatures to a copy of the document until the next week.

We have learned the names of the 50 delegates who inscribed a parchment copy of the Declaration four days ago.

The anxiety of some delegates & the steadiness of others is reflected in the unverified report of an exchange involving Benjamin Franklin immediately after the signing on August 2.

Now we must all hang together," one worried delegate is said to have pleaded.

"We must all hang together or, most assuredly, we will all hang separately," quipped Dr. Franklin with the lightest of courage of his 70 years.

Since New York on July 15 instructed its delegates to sign the document, the title has now been changed to "The Unanimous Declaration of the Thirteen United States of America."

As President of Congress, Hancock signed the parchment copy first in a large & bold hand, reportedly asserting that King George III would not need spectacles to read his name.

The authenticity of the alleged comment by Hancock is doubtful since the Congress has not made any plan or provision to send a copy of the Declaration to King George. But there is little doubt, however, that a printed copy of the Declaration is currently en route to England.

John & Samuel Adams of Massachusetts, leading proponents of independence & Thomas Jefferson, the Virginia, who drafted the Declaration, have of course signed. Strangely, the man who actually introduced the resolution separating the United States from Britain, Richard Henry Lee, has not yet signed. Lee has had to return to Virginia since he proposed the fateful motion on June 7.

A leading opponent of independence, John Dickinson of Pennsylvania, would not sign. Yet Dickinson has joined his militia regiment to take up arms against the King.

Robert Morris, a close associate of Dickinson who also opposed independence, has nevertheless put his signature on the Declaration. So has George Read of Delaware, Carter Braxton of Virginia & Edward Rutledge of South Carolina.

Signers of the Declaration range in age from the 26-year-old Rutledge to the 70-year-old Franklin, although most are in the 30's & 40's. Eight were born in the British Isles. One, George Taylor, a new delegate from Pennsylvania, came to America as an indentured servant.

Except for another new delegate, Charles Carroll of Maryland who is a Roman Catholic (& one of the wealthiest men in America), almost all subscribe to Protestantism. Four were trained as ministers, but only one in the group is an active clergyman—Rev. John Witherspoon, president of the College of New Jersey in Princeton.

Four of the delegates who have signed are physicians. Still another new delegate from Pennsylvania, Dr. Benjamin Rush, 30, is among these. Graduated from the College of New Jersey at age 15, Rush earned his medical degree at the University of Edinburgh in Scotland. Newly married this year, Rush is eminent in both medicine & politics in Philadelphia.

Dr. Rush inspired Thomas Paine to write the now-famous Common Sense pamphlet published in January. He also supplied the title for Paine.

More than half the signers of the Declaration have been trained in law, but not all practice it. Some are merchants. About one-fourth of the men are wealthy planters & land owners.

Goldcoast Gardener

Many times an old lawn will start to become unthrifty and the reason for much of the problem may be an accumulation of grass, old leaves, stems and roots which is collectively called thatch. Thatch accumulations are undesirable for many reasons. First, dead thatch will make mowing very difficult and may cause scalping and an uneven appearance. Thatch also intercepts and restricts the movement of fertilizers and pesticides into the soil.

Thatch also provides an excellent habitat for insects and diseases and at the same time reduces the effectiveness of insecticides and fungicides thus making pest control more difficult. Water and air movement is restricted through thatch and heavily thatched lawns also will brown off quicker following cold weather.

To avoid a buildup of thatch there are several things that you can do. One is to pick up clippings. Most owners either have attachments on their catch clippings or can purchase a catcher bag that will fit most mowers. This probably more than any other single factor will greatly reduce thatch buildup.

Thatch will occur most heavily on St. Augustine and Zoysia grass while Bahia and Bermuda do not have as many problems from thatch. Many times overwatering and overfertilizing will result in excessive growth and thus contribute to buildup of thatch.

Fertilizing and watering practices should be done at periodic intervals and at rates recommended for your type grass. Indiscriminate use of fertilizer not only increases nitrogen but makes the lawn more susceptible to pests.

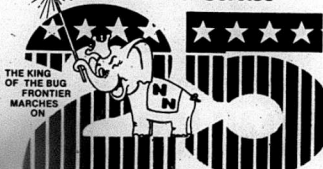

Lawns should be mowed at the recommended height and frequency and if no more than 1/4 to 1/2 inch of leaf is removed at each mowing thatch seldom increases. If, however, intervals between mowing allow excess clippings to develop when it is mowed, this will contribute to the thatch problem.

Scalping may be used to remove excess thatch, however this is a practice that requires considerable time for the lawn to recover from. When thatch becomes excessively thick special equipment is needed to remove it. If needed.
